Receiving Invoices by Email

Correspondence has recently gone out regarding electronic invoicing. We have upgraded our accounting software and we would like to start sending invoices/statements to you via email instead of through the postal system. We believe that this improved method of trading will increasingly save time, reduce costs and be ultimately more efficient. We introduced this at the beginning of November and many customers have responded with their preference for receiving invoices. If you have not yet indicated whether this is a preferred option could you please email Liz on liz@tamevalleysteelstock.co.uk and your details will be added to the system.

Steel Prices

At time of going to press, there has been no official announcement on what is going to happen with steel prices going into the New Year. The general feeling in the market is that prices will move upwards, and according to Steel Business Briefing 'all the players in the market are looking at increasing their offers following the upward trend started in Europe at the beginning of November'. However, it seems that for December prices will remain consistent as demand remains flat.

We will of course monitor the situation and inform our customers should any significant changes in the steel market occur.

Please contact any of our sales team with your Mild steel sheet requirements for December.

Our Branded packaging helps to ensure that your steel is protected throughout the delivery process.
