

Volunteers Needed

Would you and your heeler like to have some fun before the Blackpool Show?

Lancashire's coast isn't just home to the Blackpool Championship Show: it is internationally recognised for its wildlife, including migratory birds and rare amphibians and reptiles, as well as plants. Here on the Fylde Coast, we would like to do something positive to encourage dog owners to act responsibly and we'd like to use our native Lancashire breed to do it.

We're looking for some volunteers to come along on Saturday 23rd June to St. Anne's and help Natural England and the Lancashire Wildlife Trust make a short film. No previous experience is necessary! All you need to do is show up with your heeler(s) and enjoy yourself.

We will be learning about the coast and its wildlife and learning a few training techniques and exercises that help keep your dog focussed on you.
