

Just £2 feeds a school child for a month

Making small changes

Children wash their hands before eating using the facility provided through your donations, helping in the prevention and spread of illness.

Children are from poor families; Betty makes and sells potato cakes on a road side fire for passing drivers so her children can attend school.

The school feeding programme is struggling because of:

- ☺ pupil numbers increasing
- ☹ exchange rates worsening
- ☹ local food prices rising

Your contribution matters, no matter how much.

What MANGO TREE?

In 2000 a small group of children gathered under the shade of a mango tree to learn. Twelve years later, Under The Mango Tree was formed to help a new generation of learners. £60,000 raised, for classrooms, books, three nursery teachers, life-saving mosquito nets...

Some children walk barefoot, up to 4 miles, to start at 7.30am collecting wood along the way for the school kitchen fire. Most, if not all the children will arrive at school without having eaten, so breakfast of sorghum is served, a runny porridge given in plastic cups, at 9am.

After more lessons, a lunch of rice, or ugali (white maize) and on two or three days per week kidney beans too.

Helping to feed the minds and bodies of the children at Kambe Timboni School, Kenya

What can you do to help?

EAT CAKE

Don't feel guilty, we all do it and it's even better with friends. Invite people round, takes cakes to work, organise a picnic after school...just ask for a small donation to help provide a school lunch in Kenya.

Share your happy fund raising story and with your permission, you can star on our website. The children (above) are HAPPY because for many it's their first school trip, first ride on a bus, first time out of the village, first time at the seaside!
