Devolution vision for Nottingham and Nottinghamshire

Leaders from the nine councils in the County have set out their ambitious joint vision for devolved powers to improve investment in the economy, the environment and health.

In a paper to the joint City of Nottingham and Nottinghamshire Economic Prosperity Committee, councils have outlined how they would work in partnership to help boost economic investment, improve the environment, and tackle health and educational inequalities across the city and county.

The City and County are aiming to be one of the government's pathfinder sites for devolution deals, the details of which will be outlined in the much anticipated 'levelling-up' white paper expected this autumn.

If a deal was to be agreed, powers would be handed equally to Nottingham City Council and Nottinghamshire County Council to work in partnership with district councils such as ourselves to take responsibility from the government over major decisions and services that affect people in Nottingham and Nottinghamshire.

If successful, a devolution deal could result in extra powers and money from government to deliver a county and city-wide approach to improve investment in education and skills, transport and the environment, the economy and infrastructure, land and housing, health and social care, youth services and support to vulnerable young people and potentially much more.

Extra powers could also be gained to deliver community safety, tourism, and heritage, as well as better control over regulatory powers.

Our Leader Cllr Simon Robinson said: "This partnership could make significant strides in Rushcliffe and Nottinghamshire allowing more local decision making on many key services that affect us all and levelling up in line with the government's vision.

"Sustainable growth, the environment, quality of life for our residents and efficient services are our priorities here in Rushcliffe and devolution shaped in this way with partners could only increase focus and resource to achieving them even further.

"More devolution from the government over major decisions and services can only be a positive for Rushcliffe, Nottingham and Nottinghamshire people."

Council leaders will consider a report at the next Economic Prosperity Committee to be held at Castle House, Great North Road in Newark on October 29.

The report will also seek approval to establish a programme team at a cost of £449,831 to be funded from the Shared Business Rates Pool.

Exercise programme for adults with additional needs receives vital Reach Rushcliffe funding

An exercise group that organises classes for adults with additional needs have received vital funding from Reach Rushcliffe to extend the provision into the upcoming winter months.

Working as part of the Meet, Greet and Eat project, the 'Project Believe' exercise class organisers have received the funds from our project that will assist with costs of the qualified trainer, the purchase of equipment and the cost of hiring a venue.

The classes provide participants with physical activity training to improve their mental health and reduce social isolation and to also to give helpful information on weight loss and management, health and nutrition and how to improve balance and coordination.

They meet every Thursday at All Hallows Church Hall in Lady Bay in West Bridgford and are inviting new members to join the classes.

Afghanistan Resettlement Programme

We are working collaboratively with Government Office and other key partners to assist newly arriving Afghanistan citizens who qualify for assistance under the Afghan Relocations and Assistance Policy.

City Council and Notts Refuge Forum to provide information and support to ensure successful integration into the community.
