Deanna Tyson FRSA

Deanna is a mixed media artist whose specialism involves textiles. Her keynote pieces are narrative kimono. Her practice involves exploring complex sociopolitical ideas through the very familiar, everyday medium of textiles, often drawing parallels between such concepts with well known folk and nursery tales.

Currently, Deanna's fascination is with the humble teabag. Having incorporated used, dried and emptied bags into the making of her most recent kimono, she has gone on to develop these skin toned fragments as a ground for portraits and figures that she also paints, appliqués and stitches.

Deanna teaches art at her Cambridge based studio. She also gives talks on her kimono and other pieces to groups around the country and can offer kimono catwalks at charity functions.

Deanna has exhibited in solo and group shows in USA, Jamaica, Mexico, Bali, France, Holland and around UK.
